USER PERSONA FOR THE FamPay APP

A UX Research & Interface Analysis

Divyansh kahndelwal | PRN: 1032233926 | Panel: D | Roll No: 63

Ananya Sharma

Age: 16
Education: Class 11 (Science), Delhi Public School
Hometown: Bengaluru, India
Family: Lives with parents and younger brother
Occupation: High school student & part-time art hobbyist

"I just want my own card to pay for stuff online without asking my parents every single time — is that too much to ask?"

Goals

- Have a personal payment card for online shopping and subscriptions
- Track spending and learn to budget monthly pocket money
- Pay friends back instantly using UPI without cash hassle
- Save up for things she wants through goal-based savings
- Feel independent without needing parents for every small purchase

Frustrations

- UPI transactions occasionally fail during peak hours with no clear error
- KYC verification process is confusing and requires multiple attempts
- Limited merchant acceptance — some stores don't accept prepaid cards
- Customer support is slow to respond when transactions get stuck
- Parents can see every transaction, which feels like over-monitoring